

Giving banks the authority to solicit people from the Indiana no call list would be a great mistake. Prior to the no call list we were persistently annoyed by telemarketers which included banks. The banks would often have two to three different people call you regarding the same item. If people are truly interested in something they will inquire about it. I personally enjoy my family and dinner time uninterrupted by solicitors which include banks.